NUMBER 4

Mr. James H. Brown, nephew of John Brown, "whose soul goes marching on," has been promoted to an inspector of the postoffice department by Postmaster General Howe. Now let the postoffice department do a good thing for some of the needy members of John Brown's family.

The Democratic party can talk of its great dead, like it did in Chicago the other day when Andrew Jackson was the subject of the hour, but it has no heroes living that it can praise. It is particularly unfortunate that something refreshing and eloquent can't be said of McClellan, Seymour, Tilden, and Hancock. They belong to the grave-yards party, and have run for the Presidency.

A dispatch from St. Paul to the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph, says it is reported in that city that "the Chicago & Northwestern railway company proposes a new invasion of the territory of the St. Paul company, and will build a line from Montfort, in Wisconsin, which connects directly with its Galena division, to Prairie du Chien, and so on up the east bank of the Mississippi to this city, in direct competition with the river division of the St. Paul road."

A few weeks ago it was announced through the public prints that Miss Idia Terry, of Chicopee Falls, Massachusetts, had a head of hair of unparalleled length and beauty. Her hair was so long that it trailed a half a yard along the floor. But there is another claimant to the honor of wearing the longest head of hair in the United States—Miss Hatzie A. Miller, of Rochester, New York. Her hair is exactly six feet and six inches long, having a trail of fourteen inches along the floor.

There is no man in the United States who has had so varied experience in political parties as Judge Doolittle who is a resident of both Wisconsin and Illinois and no man has made poorer use of his experience than the Judge. Recently he made a speech at the Iroquois (Democratic) banquet in Chicago, and about which the New York Times says: "Judge Doolittle, of Wisconsin, who, to use a nautical and timely simile, has boxed the political compass, and has been in every party since Andrew Jackson was born, made a speech in opposition to monopolies. Judge Doolittle has been monopolized by no party."

The restoration of the franking privilege of the United States Senate, may be regarded as an ill-timed measure. The country has been heard from already, and already there are signs of dissatisfaction. The vote in the Senate stood 45 to 15 in favor of the restoration of the franking law. Mr. Sawyer voted for it, and Mr. Cameron was paired with Vest, of Missouri, and therefore do not know on what side he stood. The plea on the part of the members of Congress is that the expense of preparing postage on public documents is too great for the members to bear, and as a result it is a bar to free intercourse between them and their constituents. However this may be, the people will hardly believe that there is only necessity for a revival of the old law at present.

One of the brightest and most dashing young politicians this country ever produced, was Milton S. Latham, who recently died in California at the age of 55. He had a remarkable career—one which hardly had a parallel in the politics of the United States. When he was only twenty seven years old he was elected to Congress from California, and made two or three brilliant speeches which sent his name over all the country. When only twenty nine, President Pierce appointed him Collector of the port of San Francisco. Before he was thirty-two, he was elected Governor of California, and the next year he was elected United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the murder of Senator Broderick by Judge Terry. He was then the youngest man that ever held a seat in the Senate. When he finished his senatorial term, he dropped out of politics, and turned his attention to making money, and he became as successful in that field as he was in politics. He engaged in banking and mining, became immensely rich, and owned one of the four largest private libraries in the United States, and in it were more costly bindings than could be found in any private or public library in the country, his best works being bound especially for him in London. Four years ago, he went to New York to live where his scholarly tastes could be more easily satisfied than in California. His brilliant intellect and high social qualities drew around him the most select company of any man in New York.

Wasn't Proud.

At Grand Island the other day a passenger found three flies in his tea at the eating house. He called the waiter to him and said: "You are in error about me. You evidently think I am traveling in a special car and putting on a great deal of dog. I'm riding second-class without baggage, and am only entitled to one fly. Give this cup to that big, fat man at the corner table. He is a director of the road and is entitled to three flies in his tea and a dead cockroach between his pancakes. I cannot travel second-class and usurp the rights of first-class passengers. Please to pass the entomological mustard before you go, and set the adamanic prunes where I can reach them. I may want to throw one at the head waiter occasionally to attract his attention."—Bill Nye.

THE CHINESE BILL.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The Senate was not in session to-day. The was a slim attendance in the House to listen to the debate on the Chinese bill. Mr. Speed was the first speaker. He paid a high tribute to the colored race, contrasting it with the yellow race.

Mr. Deuster said he would vote for the bill. Let Congress stamp this threatening danger out of existence before it could grow large enough to require more serious measures for its suppression.

Mr. Guenther also advocated the passage of the bill. He would like to limit the time of suspension to ten years, but he would vote for the bill as it stood to foist another restrictive measure would be adopted.

Mr. Moore, of Tennessee, created a sensation by making a strong speech against the importation of what he termed "eating, drinking, and opium-making automats."

Mr. Williams, of Wisconsin, spoke against the bill and said: "My sentiment in regard to this bill is to express the hope that, as one President vetoed the other, so may another President veto this bill." [Applause on the Republican side.]

Mr. Brumm supported the bill. He made the point that every Chinaman who was in this country had kept out one honest German or Irishman.

JERSEY JUSTICE.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Once more New Jersey justice has been manifested in the sentencing of Frederick A. Palmer, the late City Auditor of Newark, to the State prison to-day. They don't do things by halves in Jersey, and the criminal who falls into the law's net is landed high and dry. The amount of Palmer's was upwards of $220,000. The Judge in sentencing him said: "You were the custodian of the funds, and did not accomplish your frauds without fault, else where part of the money was obtained by forgery, part on warrants paid by the city treasurer in plain defiance of law. To pass over such an offense lightly would be a miscarriage of justice. It is useless to devise checks for public protection in the payment of public moneys if when they are disregarded the offender is to be treated leniently. You were the chief offender and perpetrator of these frauds. The faults elsewhere were of negligence without hope of gain. The injury done to the credit of this community is incalculable. Public credit can be restored only by the wholesale punishment of all concerned in the perpetration of these frauds." Then a sentence of twenty years' imprisonment in the State prison was pronounced. About six years of the term will be remitted for good behavior, and if he does not violate the discipline of the prison his actual term of servitude will be about fourteen years. Palmer's wife made a strong appeal for clemency before the sentence was pronounced, but the judge, in referring to the fact, said he regretted he could not comply with her wishes, but a crime like this could not be passed over lightly.

TIRED OF LIFE.

ROCKFORD, Ill., March 19.—A 23 year old daughter of mother Van Valkenburg attempted suicide Saturday night by taking laudanum. She was found insensible on the floor, and two physicians were summoned, who, after two hours' hard work, resuscitated her. She attempted to take her life, as her lover, to whom she was engaged, married another girl on Friday. To-day she is very low.

GREEN BAY, Wis., March 19.—Christian Heineman, aged 57, of the town of Sunapee, committed suicide by drinking a dose of Paris green. He lived from five o'clock in the afternoon until eleven in the evening, suffering terribly. He had exhibited signs of an unsound mind, and was subject to fits of extreme depression.

A LITTLE UNWELL.

NEW YORK, March 18.—When it was reported this afternoon that J. B. Shepherd, the Peruvian Company's President, who is wanted in Washington to testify before a Congressional committee, took sick, an attempt was made to ascertain what was the matter with him. Inquiries at his office in Spruce street were very unsatisfactory, the only information given being that Shepherd was a "little unwell," at his home in Richmond Hill, L.I., and would not be out until Monday or Tuesday, probably. A dispatch was sent to a prominent gentleman in Richmond Hill to ascertain how Shepherd was. The reply was: "Shepherd is not at home."

A MICHIGAN BOY.

COLDWATER, Mich., March 19.—We have a fat boy in our county that is not often discounted. He is a native of the county, just about of age, and tips the scales at 406 pounds. His ancestors were of medium size, and in his youth there was nothing about him indicating greatness except his name—John Quincy Adams. Thus he literally had greatness thrust upon him, and, like Topsy, "has jess growed" ever since. He is a healthy farmer's boy, and has taught the young idea several terms. One day he built himself a temporary house on one of the Western prairies, and, while a blizzard demolished it and scattered the contents in every direction, it could not now him down.

PETITIONS FOR PARDON.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The rooms of the Garfield club were thronged all day to-day with sympathizers with the movement to secure the pardon of Sergeant Mason, who fired on Guiteau. There were many requests for petitions, but the supply of printed blanks had been exhausted, and the printer had failed to furnish the new lot as he had promised. The applicants came from Brooklyn, Jersey City, Yonkers, and all neighboring places, and two were soldiers from Governor's Island. As it was Sunday, no mail was received, but one letter was left at the club-rooms. It was from a train dispatcher of the Manhattan Elevated road asking for petitions for the employees to sign. Mr. J. B. Johnson desired a petition for the society of colored Bohemians. The superintendent of the Singer machine factory at Elizabethport, N. J., wrote that his 1,700 employees would sign.

The superintendent of the Ansonia Clock company reported that 1,200 signatures were waiting there. Many of the men who called said that they could easily secure 500 signatures each. The officers of the club and their force of clerks worked nearly all night Saturday addressing wrappers. Two large bags containing 1,100 petitions were deposited in the post-office this morning. Many for places out of town. Copies were sent to every hotel, market, ferry, bank, post-office, club, clergyman, stock, produce, and other exchanges and all the large factories in this city. Special copies were mailed to Gen. Grant, Gen. Hancock, Senator Conkling, and Collector Robert-son.

STAR ROUTE.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—George Bliss says that the current talk about the prospective miscarriage of justice in the star-route case is simply nonsense. It grows, he says, entirely out of the "much ado about nothing" and Cook's retirement from the star route cases. It is absolutely without foundation. He has, he says, the threads of the prosecution within his grasp as he never had them before, and he will soon show the star-routers that he is as much in earnest as ever. He makes the point that everybody should understand that he is devoting most of his time to this matter, and that his personal and professional reputation is bound up in it. If he succeeds he will receive credit proportionate to the blame which will be heaped upon him if he fails. He does not mean to fail. He is glad that men who have wrought failure for him, had he followed their advice, have left the case. It was simply sheer tenacity of purpose on his part that prevented their switching the prosecution off on the discarded Prescott and Santa Fe case when he proposed laying before the Grand Jury the Dorsey-Brady case, upon which he secured indictments. He will exert every effort to convert "indictments" into "convictions." The proposed civil suits are well in hand.

HE IS BREAKING DOWN.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Guiteau, according to Deputy Warden Ross, who has charge of him, is breaking down. Warden Ross, being asked to-night how his prisoner was, said: "Guiteau is not so well as he has been. He weakened a great deal last week."

"From what cause?"

"It was the interview in some Chicago newspaper in which Scoville said he was willing Guiteau should be sacrificed if thereby public attention would be called to the necessity for reform in the laws relating to insane criminals."

"Guiteau now reminds me," said his warden, "of a story connected with the hanging of Modoc Captain Jack. As the noose was about to be put about his neck, Captain Jack said, 'Don't hang me, hang Scar-Faced Charley there.' That is just the way with Guiteau. He has no objection to legislation on the subject of insanity, but he does not want to be hung—at any rate, not as an example of the deficiency of the law. He is quite willing that Scoville or anybody else shall be hung. Indeed, he said so the other day. It is a paradox of fear he cried out to one of the guards, 'Why don't they hang Scoville and let me go?' I am a high-toned gentleman and he is only a real estate lawyer. The country can spare him better than it can spare me!"

"PICKED-UP" KNOWLEDGE.

How can everybody know everything? And we may observe in fact, everybody does not know everything. It came out upon the Labouchere-Lawson trial, that Lord Chief-Judge Coleridge had never heard of Mr. Corney Grinn. His livelier predecessor frequently betrayed a somewhat surprising ignorance of things that were, so to speak, in the air. Mr. Carlyle, who was very fond of referring to Morton's pills, never succeeded in spelling the name correctly. It may be noted, when a distinguished man dies, that the funeral sermons are many of them, full of blunders—not mere mistakes, such as any one might make, but downright bad shots, which show that the preachers did not know how to take aim. These prove ignorance; but they often prove besides that on account of some irreceptivity of mind, true knowledge was impossible to the speakers; they have "crammed" all of a sudden, and have shown the texture of their faculties in doing so. The judges are, as a rule, wonderful fellows; but in spite of the peculiar habit of "cram" which belongs to barristers, they sometimes fail in their estimates of men and things for want of what we roughly describe as picked-up knowledge.

Not long ago Mr. Gladstone admitted that he did not know what spruce beer was, and journalists accustomed to the real pearl these imitations are so much dross, and I can hardly better express the difference than to say that the spurious ones seem dead and devoid of the blush and sparkle that is the beauty of the real pearl. The latter needs no artistic adornment to set it off. Held in the hand and subjected to the closest scrutiny it appears the best.

Shooting Stars.

In one sense shooting stars have been known for centuries. In another sense, knowledge concerning them was very limited. In fact, almost nothing was known of what caused these phenomena until within times that are quite modern.

In ancient history many instances are recorded of stones having fallen from heaven.

The first meteoric stone of which we are told, fell in Crete, as early as 1478 B. C., or more than three thousand years ago.

The first star shower of which a notice is given in history, occurred in November, 472, at which time, says Theophanes, a Byzantine historian, the sky at Constantinople seemed to be on fire with flying meteors.

Another very remarkable shower, noted by Conde, in his history of the Arabs, occurred in October, 902.

Since that time many similar showers have been known to occur, the most memorable one is modern times having taken place in 1833, and this is the one that led to the working out of the true theory in regard to them.

Though Humboldt and Bonpland had witnessed the same phenomenon in 1799, nothing was accomplished until Prof. Olmsted, after carefully observing the phenomena in the shower of 1833, worked out a theory which, though faulty, was valuable in that it suggested to other investigators the true theory.

As about this time the celebrated Dr. Ollers conceived the idea that these showers occurred in periods, at intervals of about thirty-four years, he accordingly predicted a shower in 1867, and his prediction was verified; but, as the shower occurred after midnight, and was not so extensive as the one that took place in 1833, it is not generally known that a star shower of any importance has occurred since that memorable year.

It was for a long time thought, by those who made any pretensions to knowledge in regard to the cause of shooting stars, that they were simply the result of a chemical combination of different gases, which were supposed to have united in the atmosphere, and to have thus produced sufficient heat to cause the phenomena that were witnessed, but this theory was no longer satisfactory, after the observations of 1799 and 1833, at which time it was noticed that the meteors all moved apparently toward one point of the heavens. This showed that they were external bodies moving by the earth in parallel lines. On this supposition it was easy to account for their light. With the earth moving in its orbit with a velocity of about nineteen miles per second, the friction of these small bodies, even if they were without motion of their own, would on their coming in contact with the earth's atmosphere, produce a degree of heat many times hotter than that of any blast furnace. It is estimated that the heat thus produced is sufficient not only to fuse any known substance, but also to transform all but very large meteors into vapor.

Shooting stars were formerly not considered as coming within the province of the science of astronomy, but the researches of Professor H. A. Newton and several other noted astronomers show them to come within the province of that science as truly as do comets.

In fact, their investigations have shown that meteors are very closely related to comets. The investigations both of Newton and Schiaparelli show that these particles are in many cases following after and in the orbits of comets, and the November meteors are known to arise from the earth encountering a swarm of particles that follow Tempel's comet.

When scattering, or, as they are called, sporadic, meteors encounter the earth, we have occasional shooting-stars that may be seen on nearly every night.

But the periodic ones move in clusters and give us the meteoric shower. The orbit of the thickest cluster is such as to have a point in common with the earth. Our planet and this cluster, forever moving onward in obedience to the silent yet ever present and irresistible force of the sun's attraction, meet at this common point three times in a century, and when they meet there comes a star shower like that of 1833 or of 1867, scenes that to some are full of terrors, to others impressively sublime and beautiful.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Clergymen and Lawyers.

It is a general opinion among laymen that the ablest clergymen are always to be found in the large cities, though no opinion could be further from correct. The same idea is entertained of lawyers, although it would be easy to find more than one town in any State which has proportionately a larger number of able lawyers than any of its leading cities have. The same thing is true in the case of the clergy. The lawyers and clergy know this better than the laymen, and often act on it. It is a fact that a very large number of the men prominent today in all of the professions had their training in small towns and earned most of their distinction while living there.

He Had Left His Card.

No matter how witty you may be, some one is likely to be more witty still and to turn your weapon against yourself. When two gentlemen fell out with each other one of them went to the other's home, and in large letters wrote "scoundrel" on the front door. The next day, when they met by accident, two said to number one:

"How did you dare to call on me, yesterday, sir?"

"I did not call on you and I never will call on you," was the bitter reply.

"Well, sir," continued number two, "either you or one of your friends called for this morning, when I came out of the house, I saw your name written on my door."

Snipe on Toast.

I had some snipe on toast in Harrisburg. I saw a bill of fare:

"Snipe on toast, sixty cents."

Snipe on toast would be almost too healthy food to feed people who had been floating on a raft three weeks, feeding on boot-legs. Says I to the waiter:

"Give me some snipe on toast."

By and by he came in and put down some toast, and I kept on reading. I sat there an hour. Then I rang the gong. The waiter entered, and says I:

"Where the deuce is my meat?"

Says he: "They've been on the table an hour."

Say I: "I didn't order plain toast; I wanted a snipe on it."

Says he: "There is a snipe on it."

Then I drew close up to the table and I saw a black speck on the toast, and I says:

"You'll swear that's a snipe?"

Say I: "Yes."

Says I: "You would make a good linen buyer, you would."

Says he: "It's a snipe on toast, any how."

Says I: "How did it get on it?"

Says he: "That snipe's all right; it's a full-sized one, too."

Says I: "I am glad that you told me that's a full-sized snipe; for, do you know, young man, when I sat out there reading, I saw a black speck on that toast, but I took it for a fly, and I'm glad to be informed it's a snipe. Now you can take that snipe away and bring me a turkey on toast; and I want a full sized turkey, too."

I ain't hankering after snipe since that time. I could have blown that snipe through a puppy-blower without hurting the snipe or puppy-blower either. Snipe on toast may be game, but it's a mean game.—Burlington Hawkeye.

The Great Salt Lake.

Four barrels of water of the Great Salt Lake will leave, after evaporation, nearly a barrel of salt. The lake was discovered in the year 1820, and no outlet from it has yet been ascertained. Four or five large streams empty themselves into it, and the facts of its still retaining its saline properties seems to point to the conclusion that there exists some secret bed of saline deposit over which the waters flow, and that thus they continue salt—for, though the lake may be the residue of an immense sea which once covered the whole of this region, yet by its containing so salt with the amount of fresh water poured into it daily, the idea of the existence of some such deposit from which it receives its supply seems to be only too probable. From the past fifteen years until last year, the lake has been gradually rising; but in 1879 it receded two or three feet—a most unusual occurrence—owing to the exceptionally warm weather. There are no fish in the lake, but myriads of small flies cover its surface. The buoyancy of the water is so great that it is not at all an easy matter to drown in it. The entire length of the lake is eighty-five miles, and its breadth forty-five miles. Compared with the Dead Sea, the Great Salt Lake is longer by forty-three miles and broader by thirty-five miles.

What an English Viper Did.

A party of gentlemen were shooting in the neighborhood of Blackwood, near Gillingroes, when a valuable settler bitch was bitten by a viper. The poor animal almost immediately showed symptoms of the venomous bite of the viper in fainting, sickness and occasional vomiting. On the following day the keeper visited the same spot, and discovered the reptile basking on a heap of stones, and a number of young vipers around her. When he approached her, he could plainly see the mother opening her mouth and the young vipers crawling in. When killed, eleven young ones were found, alive, active and of the same color as a mackerel. The length of the viper was two feet six inches, and the young vipers six inches each.—London Times.

A Singular Prayer.

The American Republican, of Georgia, tells of an old darkey, who was heard praying over a bag of corn which he had just stolen. The old sinner said: "Oh, Lordy, God, I jes' been an' stole a bushel of corn from dat mean man, John Williams' patch. I axes your pardon. He's got a plenty, an' so has I, but he won't pay me for my work, so good Lord overlook dis little transgres and keep dem from finding it out, for I wants to steal some more, and when I goes to steal help me to get something nice like you did done children of Isra'el when you stole dem from the bondage of Egypt, and I'll be mighty glad. And, oh, Lordy, God, if dey find out dat I stole dis corn help me to prove dat I stole dis corn to help me to prove dat I stole dis corn as a mackerel." The length of the viper was two feet six inches, and the young vipers six inches each.—London Times.

Grateful Women.

A Solid Bank.

Speaking of stock matter, says a New York letter-writer, it may be noticed that Chemical Bank shares have reached $1,780, this being the highest quotations of any banking house in the world. When one considers that the original price of these shares was $100, the present figures show a very handsome advance. Sixty years have elapsed since John Mason originated the scheme of manufacturing chemicals and was deeply disappointed when it proved a failure. The experiment sunk $100,000, which in those days was equal to $1,000,000 at the present time. An apparent misfortune, however, often proves a real benefit, as was the case in this unsuccessful enterprise. The latter had a banking privilege which Mason determined to turn to account. He abandoned the chemical scheme, but continued the banking privilege. The capital was only $300,000, but after good management it has accumulated a surplus of $4,000,000, which is actively at work. The result is dividends of 25 per cent, per quarter and the present astonishing quotations. John Mason was the dry-good colossus of his day, and left a large fortune.

His nephew, John Q. Jones, was President of the Chemical Bank for forty years. He died not long ago in a good old age, leaving an estate worth $2,000,000, most of which had been made by buying business paper, in which he was an expert. Jones saw Chemical shares reach $1,600, which some considered the extreme of their possible valuation. There are, however, no more to be had even at the last quotations, and it is now probable that they will reach $2,000.

"How did you dare to call on me, yesterday, sir?"

"I did not call on you and I never will call on you," was the bitter reply.

"Well, sir," continued number two, "either you or one of your friends called for this morning, when I came out of the house, I saw your name written on my door."

A Spanish City at Night.

As the shades of evening descend, this whole street, illuminated with lamps, torches, and parti-lit, becomes a fairy scene. The cafes are then crowded to repetition; youthful eyes flash love at each other over glasses of snowy Horchata; old men sip their spiced cognac and dream of the islands of blessed, and fiery politicians rave and stamp and seem ready to tear each other to pieces. Here a group of artists discuss a picture; there a couple of padres are trying their hands at cards; here is a young militaire, fresh from Madrid, covered with spangles and as gay as a peacock; and there in that corner—can you believe your eyes!—the veritable old beggar that you just saw in the street, investing the priests that gave him in a nightcap of invigorating cordial. Every rank in society is represented; every variety of color and costume flashes out beneath the brilliant lights, while your ears are assailed by the din of voices, the tinkling of glasses, the sharp click of cards on the marble table, intermingled with the strains of delicious music. This is Do las Siervas by night. Would you like to see it? It is a phantasmagoria of splendor; it is a bazaar of confusion; it is a page from the "Arabian Nights" Entertainments" supplemented by sundry passages from "The Hero de la Mancha."

BRIEFS.

Election two weeks from to-morrow. Alice Oates at the Opera house tonight. The Alice Oates company are quartered at the Myers house. The firemen will elect officers at the west side houses this evening, at seven o'clock. Will A. Zeininger was taken suddenly ill on Saturday afternoon, and is still very sick. Postoffice Inspector J. D. King went to Waterloo, Racine county, on official business to-day. Officers Ed Smith captured four tramps on Saturday night, McGinley one, and Marshal Hogan four.

Mr. W. T. Parker and wife, of Morris, New York, started for home to-day. Mrs. Parker is a daughter of the late Dr. Smith, of this city.

Reports from Seneca Falls now state that our fire engine has just been transferred to the paint shop. Consequently it will be some days before it arrives here.

On Sunday morning, Mr. A. C. Bates' family found a mattress, snugly tied up, lying in their front yard. The owner is requested to take charge of same, or it will be destroyed.

Messrs. Rogers & Hutchinson are today putting in new plate glass in the front of Shea's tailoring establishment, on Main street, Smith's block, in place of the broken ones.

From the Council Bluffs department of the Omaha Bee: "R. B. Williams, of Janesville, Wis., was in the city yesterday looking after the interests of the Empire cross spring manufacturing company."

We were a little "too previous" in stating on Saturday evening that the next meeting of the Temple of Honor would be held on March 27th. It should have been on March 29th. To-night is the time.

Mrs. Richard Jones, of Emerald Grove, is lying dangerously ill. That family has already been afflicted by the death of a mother, son and daughter, and now it seems that Mrs. Jones can hardly recover.

Seven tramping vagabonds were before the municipal court to-day, and were disposed of as follows: One six days in jail on bread and water; three ten days on same diet, and three were allowed to continue their tramp.

The Herbert Dramatic company came up from Beloit this morning, and remained in the city for a short time, and then departed for Monroe where they play a week's engagement. They played to a good business last week at Beloit.

Says the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph: "J. D. King, of Janesville, one of the trustees connected with the postoffice department, and one of the most genial men on the road, was a visitor to the metropolis Friday and Saturday.

Judge Patten, in the municipal court, this morning, granted the motion for a new trial in the Penny incest case, on the ground that Penny's counsel was not present when the verdict was rendered. The new trial will probably take place the last of this week.

Dr. H. N. Warren, son of Dr. J. H. Warren, is in the city, whose headquarters are at Wisner, Nebraska. He has a large cattle range in the above place, and has been very successful. He is now here waiting for orders on the mail route business.

There were 144 money orders issued at the Janesville postoffice the past week, amounting to $1,452.26, the fees being $7.45. During the same time seventy-three orders were paid, requiring $1,105.48, making a total business for the week of $2,575.19.

The Beloit Outlook which makes a great thing out of nothing as follows: "Janesville ladies have Oscar Wilde sables. Their husbands and fathers and brothers should look after these feminines, and organize a Paddy Ryan or Sullivan club and clean the Oscarites out."

On Saturday afternoon Sheriff Skavlen's little four-year old boy accidentally fell and dislocated one of his elbows. The little fellow's injuries were not discovered by his parents until some hours afterwards, when surgical assistance was called. The little boy is now all right, excepting a pain at the elbow joint.

One year ago last night was one of the wildest nights ever known in the history of Janesville. One of the most blinding snow storms ever seen here prevailed with a powerful north wind and five or six feet of snow already on the ground. On that memorable night Mr. T. W. Keene first appeared here and played Richard the Third to a crowded house.

At a meeting of the delegates of the different fire companies, held on Saturday evening, for the purpose of selecting candidates for chief engineer and assistants of the fire department, Mr. R. P. Young was nominated for Chief, John Kelly for First Assistant, and Thomas Mahon, for Second Assistant. The nominations were all made by acclamation, and without the least opposition. The gentlemen nominated have had long experience in fire matters, are capable and efficient officers, and none could fill the positions better.

Yesterday afternoon while some of our fast horsemen were speeding their highfliers on River street, in the neighborhood of the jail, the turnkey thought he would play a joke on the crowd that lined the sidewalk, witnessing the sport.

Accordingly when the crowd had gathered near the gates of the jail-yard, "H. A." displayed the "yellow flag" from a prominent place. Drivers and lookers-on alighted at it, and in less time than it takes to tell the joke, the street was entirely cleared of all human beings.

Mr. D. C. Ward has just completed a fence in front of his residence on Glen street, in the Second ward, which, if not the handsomest, is certainly the most substantial in this city. The fence is made of stone and iron; the foundation is made of the huge blocks of cut stone taken from the abutments of the lower bridge, embedded in the ground with cement, this foundation is about eighteen inches in height,—there are seven stone posts at regular distances, surmounted with iron caps and iron balls, through which two round iron bars run the entire length. The gates are of iron frames with wire netting. The fence has the combination of being substantial, durable and somewhat ornamental, and Mr. Ward is of the opinion that if no violent earthquake happens, it will last his life time. The actual cost of this fence is in the neighborhood of two hundred and seventy-five dollars.

Alice Oates in Mascotte.

The Alice Oates Opera Bouffe company have arrived in the city, and will give the charming comic opera of La Mascotte this evening at Myers Opera house.

The engagement in Milwaukee was an excellent one, financially, as the engagements of Alice Oates always are, and the performances gave the highest satisfaction.

The Evening Wisconsin of last Thursday says: "In the Mascotte the company showed to particularly good advantage, the vivacious little actress being ably seconded by James Sturges, C. H. Drew, Miss Townsend, Miss Caldwell and the others. The favorite airs were charmingly given, and numerous recalls were in order. Mrs. Oates seems to have lost none of her ability to please, being as sprightly and graceful as ever. Sturges, who will be remembered as the excellent DeMerrimac in 'Olivette,' has greatly improved since his last appearance here, and became a favorite at once."

The company throughout is not only particularly strong, the opera a most excellent one, but Alice Oates is a comic opera singer of national fame and her power to please an audience is as great as ever. Despite the weather, the Opera house should be crowded.

Mrs. Fixen on Temperance.

Mrs. L. G. Fixen, of Albert Lea, Minnesota, held the fort last evening at Court Street church, taking for her subject, "The Ink-Bottle vs. The Whisky-Jug." There was an exceedingly large audience to greet her, and one which appreciated the importance of the subject as well as the ability and efforts of the lecturer. Mrs. Fixen lectured in Court Street church something like two years ago, on the subject of temperance, and spoke so well and seemed so devoted to her work, that she made many friends.

She is a Scandinavian by birth, and has been in this country probably thirteen or fourteen years. She is a lady of education and many accomplishments, and her lectures prove that she has been a close student of our language and institutions, and that she has gained a wide acquaintance with the public men and the politics of our country. She speaks without notes, and is rather attractive in her personal appearance. Her pronunciation is not perfect, and probably never will be; but there is just enough of the Scandinavian brogue in it to give additional interest to her manner of speaking. She holds an audience remarkably well, and throws in enough wit and sharp hits and strong anecdotes, to keep an audience in excellent humor.

There was nothing particularly new in the lecture of Mrs. Fixen. It was the usual expose of the sad results of intemperance, a demand for prohibition, a plea for woman's suffrage in order that prohibition might be carried when
